PORK.—The report that the hog cholera | pendent detectives got word of Ward, and materially diminished the quantity of pork in this State is all a humbug. There are plenty of hogs left, and no one will starve giance to the Federal government in Ken for want of a morsel of the oleaginous flesh. The killing season has just been inaugurated in the country, and the natives are inxuriating in tenderloins and sauvages. It is very evident that the people here have little fears of trickings about which much stir has been made in the medical circles of Germany. If there are sometimes certain encysted animalcula in swin e flesh as has been stated, we don't think the little animals would stand the least chance in the world against the ostrich-like degestive organs of a genuine native born Tennes-

THE weather yesterday was a cross be tween the most disagreeable weather of No vember, and the most miserable, melar choly, muddy days of December. Dark, clouldy and lowering, the smoke and fog hugged the city like a wet sheet, while drirsies of rain came oozing down like moisture through the saturated roof of some rocky cavern. It was one of those days when the English commit snieide and the French enjoy themselves, if they can, and not follow the example of their more hlegmatic neighbors across the channel We don't like such weather, and presumit is just as little acceptable to the majority of mankind. Still the clerk of the weather deals it out with a placid, even hand, and we are bound to accept it.
